

all writings in this section written by phaedranajones© if dance is poetry written in space, can poetry on page capture the epitome of movement or, can the same source of creativity express itself through another outlet - if asked?

these writings began as a blank page allowing words to form much like i allow movement to move through on stage

..

through the living current of creativity & love we discovered a natural consciousness altering device it is not you or i but that which is an offering of ourselves to that and nothing else the sacrifice of the personal 'i' that draws forth the impersonal that is the starting point of each self