

as we begin to consciously cooperate on the level of mystery we allow the mystery to manifest by itself an amalgamation of soul codes cracked open through one another through a recognition of god a current of love overflowing the opening in this world of dualities is through one another into that which is sacred the current emerges from the infinite space created between hearts it emerges to be deciphered as something to be given form expression light transmits light my soul recognized you in a flash & that recognition was a reflection of That which recognized You .